

New theme. Sprinting is a skill before it is a race, so tonight is about the arms and staying tall.

ON THE GROUND

- 12 cones, six lanes, 15 metres
- Hands free

Set it up before the first group arrives and leave it for all three.

Six lanes 15 metres long, with a cone at each end

0 to 2 Wake up game: wave sprints

- They jog anywhere in the grid.
- Shout "go". Every boy sprints ten metres in the direction he is already facing, then jogs again.
- Six goes, with about fifteen seconds of jogging between each one.

2 to 10 Movement: running tall

- Six lanes, waves of six, 15 metres at about three quarter pace. This is not a race and say so.
- 1. "Stand tall. Do not let your body fold in the middle."
- 2. "Elbows bent. Hand goes from your pocket to your chin and back."
- 3. "Keep your hands on your own side of your body."
- Eight waves. Stand at the side and watch the arms, not the legs.
- Walk back after every go. This is technique work and it needs them fresh.

10 to 17 Challenge game: pair races

- Pairs of roughly the same size, one pair to a lane, standing start.
- Fifteen metres. Ten races, a new partner each time.
- Now they will run properly fast, which is why the technique came first.

Coach one thing: Hands stay on their own side of the body.

- Arms swinging across the chest. Show them the picture and run beside them.
- Heads rolling from side to side.

Lashing rain. No change. Nothing tonight goes on the ground.
